The policy below is our global environmental commitment to this core value.

The global policy of Tredegar is to provide and maintain effective environmental control procedures, to strictly follow, at a minimum, all applicable legal requirements, to follow all internal environmental policies established by Tredegar, and to always act responsibly to protect the environment. Every reasonable attempt shall be made to reduce the volume of waste, and to reuse/recycle all material where feasible. Air emissions and process water discharge shall comply with all permits and regulations for the protection of the environment and community. Water shall be conscientiously used and recycled when possible to conserve the resource. Whenever possible, the least harmful chemical and process will be used.

All global facilities shall attempt to identify and minimize or, if possible, eliminate environmental risks. Tredegar shall protect its employees and neighbors by employing safe technologies and operating procedures. Facilities shall be prepared to respond to emergencies that may result in harm to our employees, customers, the community, and the environment. Emergency Response Plans should also be tested periodically by a standing emergency response team. Practicing simulated emergency situations is excellent training for true emergencies. In addition, holding group discussions to determine how employees at various levels would react in an emergency is also advisable and can influence plan development. These tasks can be undertaken by the standing emergency response team.

Tredegar will conduct rigorous audits and self-assessments of its compliance with this policy, measure progress of its environmental affairs performance, and periodically test its response preparedness.
